Confirmation

Our judgment that retired Vice Adm. W. F. Raborn Jr. will serve with distinction as head of the Central Intelligence Agency is confirmed. The New York Times doesn't like the appointment. In a sneering editorial captioned, "Master Spy," The Times says the admiral has major liabilities for the post. If The Times deplores the appointment, then "Red" Raborn must be the man for the job. The Times saves its affection for the fuzzy-headed.
